McGinley launches On Line Quotation service to meet the increasing recruitment demands for Rail Personnel

McGinley Support Services, one of the UK's largest specialist recruitment businesses, has today launched a new online quotation tool to provide rail-industry clients and prospects with the ability to obtain live, up-to-date pricing information 24 hours per day 7 days per week for both temporary and contract hired personnel, which is both accurate and reflective of commercial environment and availability.

Due to a major uplift in demand in the rail market, McGinley has launched the new On Line Quotation service to instantly generate quotations for the supply of staff across a range of categories and allows clients to choose personnel based upon specific activities. As the first quotation system of its kind in this industry, it generates quotes that are representative of work location, programme duration, personnel volume and even the type of activity that is being undertaken.

The On Line Quotation service can be used by the hirer in a number of ways e.g. as an estimating tool when tender projects, to generate an instant quotation for the supply of specific personnel or as a rate comparator to check existing suppliers rate against commercial viability and availability.

Once the data has been input into the online tool, a non-binding quotation is instantly displayed online and emailed to a preferred address. The rates are highlighted by availability to demonstrate which personnel are readily available, or whether additional lead times are needed to resource the required specialists.

The service will be rolled-out across other industry sectors in due course.

Dermot McGinley, Group Managing Director of McGinley Group said, "At McGinley, we strive to provide a competitive yet customised recruitment service with added value to infrastructure companies. The Instant personnel quoter service is testament to this as it is an innovative tool that lets our rail clients instantly obtain current personnel rate information and availability, no matter what their needs. It has been designed to streamline personnel resourcing further still and we are proud to launch the service to the rail sector today.”

Added Janet Hector, Marketing Manager of McGinley Group, “The On Line Quotation system provides rates and availability for a range of job roles, including those working in signaling, telecommunications, civil engineering, track protection, warning staff and overhead line works. We also have plans in place to roll the tool out to other infrastructure industries soon, including building, road construction, energy, water & waste. More details will follow in due course.”
